 Chapter 2*The Aquatic Zone

With Sam as my shadow, I journey on across the Zoo. I know that I need to travel north, but I also have a lot of animals to look after on my way. As I get closer to the next animals on my round, the night seems to have become darker and stiller. The chatter of the Zoo fades, until it is absolutely silent. It feels as if I have pulled my duvet up over my head and snuggled down into my bed.

In this part of the Zoo all is peaceful and quiet. I have entered the Second Ring, to a part of the zoo known to visitors as the Aquatic Zone. This zone consists of many underground tunnels with enormous fish tanks. The tanks hold fish from every river, stream, sea and ocean on earth and at night, a light, cast by the moon, illuminates a watery blue world all around me.

English

Let's read the next part of the story.

What does 'aquatic zone' mean and what animals would you expect to find there?

Draw a picture of the animals you think you would find in the aquatic zone.

Close your eyes and imagine these fish are swimming all around you.

You have entered the aquatic zone.

Inside this zone there are many underground tunnels with enormous fish tanks. The tanks hold fish from every river, stream, sea and ocean on the earth. At night, a light, cast by the moon, illuminates a watery world all around you.

When you arrive you are drawn to one particular fish tank. This tank holds a species of exotic fish that can sing! Can you hear them singing?

Well that is because they sing at a pitch too high for any human ear to hear. Their mouths move as they glide through the water and as they sing they give off a faint golden glow. They are happy, peaceful creatures.

What adjectives can you find in this piece of writing? Make a list of them.

Draw a picture of the exotic singing fish.

What does it look like?
